The Spruce / Dena Burreson Invest in a set of top-quality organic sheets, and you'll sleep better knowing your bedding is free from harsh chemicals. We sent organic sheets from the most popular bedding brands to our team of product testers, who washed, ironed, and slept on them for over three weeks. Our favorite set, the Bampure 100 percent organic bamboo sheets, are made from 100 percent organic, OEKO-TEX certified bamboo and fit most standard mattress sizes. Here are the best organic sheets on the market. Who else recommends it? PureWow and Bob Vila both picked BAMPURE Bamboo Sheets. What do buyers say? 90% of 4,600+ Amazon reviewers rated this product 4 stars or above. While the Bampure 100 Percent Organic Bamboo Sheets are a bit on the pricey side, you can feel good about sleeping on the OEKO-certified fabrics. These sheets come in 12 colors from classic white and black to bright fuchsia and blue. Each set includes a deep pocket fitted sheet, a flat sheet, and two pillowcases. The soft fabric is made from 100 percent bamboo viscose grown in a chemical-free environment. The sateen weave results in a super soft and comfortable feel all night long. Our tester loved that the sheets didn't appear too wrinkled right out of the box, and that they looked shiny and smooth to the touch. What's more, these sheets have a strap to keep your fitted sheet in place, so it won't fall off during the night. Additionally, the airy material ensures our tester stayed cool and comfortable, adding to this pick's value. The Spruce / Dena Burreson Don't let the name fool you—these crinkled sheets from Coyuchi are undeniably soft and comfortable. The crinkled effect comes from applying proprietary spinning and weaving to organic cotton to produce a washed fabric exclusive to the brand. Unlike other sheets, these come out of the box ready to jump into without necessarily wrinkles (just crinkles). The texture and thick materials earned high points from our tester, who deemed them high quality. The double seamed edge adds to this luxurious look. Choose from ten attractive colors from classic white to deep oranges and greens. Another plus of this set, the sheets are GOTS, Fair Trade, Benefits 1% For the Planet, and Made Safe certified, so you can feel good about where your materials come from. What Testers Say "These sheets are nice quality and like the color texture as well. They're a bit heavier in weight but breathable and stayed cool."—Tami Perkins, Product Tester The Spruce / Dena Burreson PB Classic 400-Thread-Count Organic Percale Sheet Set Review While a bit more expensive, you also can't go wrong with the PB Classic Organic Percale Sheet Set, which delivers a luxurious sleep experience. These sheets are made from 100 percent GOTS-certified organic cotton, and the fabric is a crisp percale weave with a 400-thread count. These PB Classic Sheets include a flat sheet, fitted sheet, and two pillowcases (twin sets only have one pillowcase), and you can choose from six plain colors. The fitted sheet fits mattresses up to 16 inches deep, and the percale construction makes the linens crisp and breathable—perfect for summer. Our tester loved how high-quality and durable these sheets were (both categories got a 5/5 stars), but their wrinkly appearance—particularly after washing—left her a bit disappointed. Like many other options on this list, the fabric in these sheets is Fair Trade Certified, meaning it's produced in factories that use fair and safe labor practices. The Spruce / Hannah Huber "Each night, these sheets felt cool to the touch but were also comfortable and inviting. While the fabric had a slight sheen to it, it's subdued and only adds to the rich feel of the material."—Hannah Huber, Product Tester Magnolia Organics Dream Collection Sheet Set Review Some of the best organic sheets you can buy are the Magnolia Organics Dream Collection Sheet Set. These linens are made from Global Organic Textile Standard, certified organic cotton, which is grown without the use of pesticides or herbicides. Additionally, they're manufactured according to Fair Trade Standards, as well. The fabric has a smooth, silky sateen construction with a 300 thread count, making them luxurious and soft to sleep in every night. Our tester found these to have a luxe feel and a heavy weight that's perfect for cooler months. The fabric drapes well, so it contours to your body for a cozy night of sleep. However, it may prove to be a bit too cozy for hot sleepers—our tester took off a point for breathability because of how hot these sheets could get, particularly when layered under other linens. This sheet set comes in six delicate colors, and each set includes a fitted sheet with a 15-inch pocket, a flat sheet, and two pillowcases (twin sets only have one pillowcase). The Spruce / Karen Tietjen What Our Testers Say "With deep, 15-inch pockets and elastic in all four corners, Magnolia Organics' fitted sheet is designed to fit snugly over mattresses and stay in place. We found that this feature was indeed effective, with the fitted sheet remaining snug over the mattress corners even after several nights of sleep."—Karen Tietjen, Product Tester The 8 Best Mattresses Available, Tested by The Spruce Flannel sheets are especially popular in the cold winter months, and you'll absolutely love the L.L. Bean Organic Flannel Sheet Collection if you love being warm and cozy in bed. These sheets are made from 100 percent GOTS-certified organic cotton, and they're also Standard 100 by OEKO-TEX certified. These organic flannel sheets are made from double-brushed cotton for a super soft feel that only improved with each wash. You can choose from four standard colors, and the fitted sheets accommodate mattresses up to 15 inches deep. We love that the plush fabric is designed to resist shrinking and fading, and the 5-ounce mid-weight fabric is comfortable to use year-round. The 9 Best Flannel Sheets That Will Keep You Warm Another popular sheet construction is sateen, which is softer and silkier than percale. If you're looking for organic sateen sheets, look no further than this set from Coyuchi. These luxurious linens are made with 100 percent GOTS-certified organic cotton that's grown in India, and they feature a 300 thread count weave that's silky to the touch and resists wrinkling. These sheets come in five neutral colors, and each set comes with the standard four pieces (except twin sets, which only have one pillowcase). The fabric is lustrous on one side and slightly matte on the other, and the sheets are so soft you won't want to get out of bed. If you prefer patterned sheets to plain ones, you should consider the Printed Siesta Organic-Cotton Percale Collection from Garnet Hill. Available in stylish floral or striped designs, each piece in the collection—which includes a fitted sheet, flat sheet, pillowcases, duvet cover, and sham—is sold separately so you can mix and match your bedding with your favorite prints. The 100 percent organic cotton sheets are breathable and soft with a relaxed texture that you'll love sleeping on night after night. Choose from a range of sizes, from twin to California king. Courtesy of Burt's Bees Baby With an adorable allover bee print, the Honeybee Organic BEESNUG Fitted Crib Sheet from Burt's Bees Baby is a super-cute organic bedding option for your little one. Made from 100 percent organic GOTS-certified cotton with a jersey knit, this fitted crib sheet is free from pesticides or herbicides. It's also extremely soft, durable, and breathable. The fitted crib sheet has an extra fabric overlap along the bottom edge, and the 360-degree elastic provides a safe, snug fit on the crib mattress and prevents the sheet from slipping while your baby sleeps. The crib sheet is 28 inches wide by 52 inches long, and with a depth of 6 inches, it fits most standard crib mattresses. Choose from a wide range of colors and patterns, including heather gray and a blossom pink bee print. Made from 100 percent GOTS-certified organic Indian Suvin cotton, this luxurious sheet set from Avocado is available in two thread counts: 600 or 1,000. The extra-long staple cotton sheets have a sateen finish and they're extremely soft, silky, and durable. Plus, they become even softer with each wash. The sheets are also OEKO-TEX and Made Safe certified. Take note that the sheet set is available in white, natural, or gray for all standard bed sizes. Each set includes a fitted sheet, flat sheet, and two pillowcases (except for twin and twin XL sizes, which come with one pillowcase). Linen sheets are known to be luxurious, super soft, and incredibly durable, which is why you can't go wrong with the Coyuchi Organic Linen Chambray Sheets. These high-end bed coverings are made from French flax that has been organically grown and processed using water-saving manufacturing methods, and the fibers are GOTS-certified. They're even dyed with low-impact dyes that are better for the planet. Each set includes a flat sheet, fitted sheet with a 15-inch pocket, and two pillowcases (except for twin sets, which only have one pillowcase). The classic chambray weave comes in seven muted colors, and the fabric has a sturdy 185 grams per square meter weight and is garment washed for a soft, relaxed feel. The 8 Best Linen Sheets That Will Help You Sleep Well Final Verdict The Bampure 100 percent organic bamboo sheets are our top choice because they are breathable, affordable, well-made, and OEKO-TEX certified. Our runner-up is the PB Classic Organic Percale Sheet Set, which offers a crisp feel and comes in classic colors. The Spruce / Karen Tietjen Over 3+ weeks, our team of testers used some of the top organic sheet options on the market. They slept with them in their own homes and laundered them to see how they held up with time, then ranked them on quality, texture, durability, breathability, and value. We combined their insights with our writers' and editors' independent research to bring you this list. The single most-discussed factor when it comes to buying organic sheets is whether a set has third-party certifications confirming that it's organic or pesticide-free. Look for the GOTS (Global Organic Textile Standard) certification to ensure that the material used is organic, was processed without pesticides or herbicides, and was manufactured in an ethical environment. Another common certification is from OEKO-TEX, which evaluates the toxicity of the end product. "OEKO-TEX stays up to date on scientific, health, and technical information, updates its criteria annually, monitors for regulatory compliance, and uses the strictest standards and methods to test and verify claims," says North American GOTS representative, Lori Wyman. "For this reason, checking for our labels is one of the easiest and most reliable ways to assure that the product you're purchasing is safe." Our top pick, the Bampure 100 Percent Organic Bamboo Sheets, for example, is constructed with OEKO-certified fabrics. If you want an organic sheet set, pay attention to its material. Cotton organic sheets are very common, but you may also see bamboo, linen, and silk. Microfiber, however, doesn't make the list, since this polyester-based textile is processed with plastics and chemicals that don't belong in organic sheets. The Bampure sheets are made from a super soft sateen weave that our testers loved. However, there are quite a few different weaves you can shop, according to your preference. "While both are made from cotton, percale and sateen offer slightly different feels and finishes based on how the materials are weaved," explains Ruthie Osswald, Senior Associate of Design and Product Development at Brookline. "Percale is a traditional one-yarn-over and one-yarn-under weave that creates a matte finish and cooling feel, while sateen is a one-yarn-under and three-yarn-over weave that is more tightly woven and heavier in weight, making for a silkier, smoother feel and slightly warmer finish."
